MARBLE EXPERTS

Marble reconciles the beauty of nature with a rich palette of colours and an intriguing play of lines and structures.

Brachot began as a wholesaler of marble slabs in 1901. Over the years, we have grown into a true specialist in natural stone, with a very strong expertise in marble. Even now, our specialists search for the best marbles in Europe and far beyond every day. Always with an eye for quality, but also for the trends in colours and uses. At the same time, we continue to innovate. Both in terms of processing – we saw blocks into slabs – and finishing, with increasing numbers of new surface structures.

Marble is a natural stone, meaning geological processes have 'sculpted' this material for centuries. This makes each slab different and unique. The intriguing play of colours and veining is one of marble's biggest assets.

As well as being aesthetic, marble is also a particularly durable material, in the broadest sense of the word. It has an exceptional lifespan and is also extremely environmentally friendly. Marble is only formed by nature, so it doesn't need any energy for its production. CO2 emissions during production and installation are also considerably lower. And because it is 100% recyclable, marble can be reused for a wide range of applications.

Choose an aesthetic look with class

The Sacré-Cœur, the Taj Mahal, Michelangelo's David, etc.: they were all carved from marble hundreds of years ago. This aesthetic, durable natural stone has become a permanent fixture and has many uses today, as cladding for floors, walls, fireplaces, stairs, or kitchen worktops and decoration.

What typifies marble above all is the enormous variety of colours, veining, and patterns. Each slab, each tile is unique, surprising, and authentic. Choosing marble is choosing pure beauty, class, and an unadulterated eye-catcher in your home.

Marble also suits every interior style. That this ancient material is also offered in various sizes, countless colour variations, standard thicknesses of 2, 3, or 4 cm (and up to 20 cm upon request) and over 17 possible surface finishes, ensure a completely personal touch.

A selection of our finishes

The finishes presented here are a selection from the 17 possible finishes for marble. We at Brachot Surfaces are constantly looking for ways to optimise these finishes and develop new ones, which means we always find the finish that best suits the material, your tastes, and the style of your home.

Sablino

A combination of various treatments gives the marble a coarse and finely grained effect.

Brosso Vecchio

This special matt finish has been developed specifically for marbles. The surface is gently brushed, giving it a 'leather feel' and accentuating its natural colour.

Sensato

Thanks to this mechanical treatment, the marble has a slightly coarse yet matt appearance, which is satisfying to the touch.

Polished

Without a doubt, the glossiest and smoothest finish, highlighting the colours and veining.

More beautiful over time...

Marble has been used for centuries in various projects, such as kitchen worktops, fireplaces, stairs, flooring, and decoration. Often because of its aesthetic properties, but also because of its compact structure and limited porosity, which make marble highly resistant to stains, heat, and wear and tear.

Marble also acquires a natural patina over time. It gets more beautiful over time. With the right maintenance products, you can also improve the scratch and acid resistance of your marble. This material is naturally stain and heat-resistant.
